

The Insanity of the Gosnell Baby-Murder Trial

Exclusive: David Kupelian on why jury has been given an impossible job

May 9, 2013

David Kupelian is an award-winning journalist, managing editor of WND and editor of Whistleblower magazine. A widely read online columnist, he is also the best-selling author of The Marketing of Evil and How Evil Works.

Have you wondered why the jury in the Kermit Gosnell multiple-baby-murder trial in Philadelphia is taking such a long time reaching a verdict?

This may be the real reason why: For most of us, the death of a child is just about the most tragic event we can imagine. The Sandy Hook massacre was so overwhelmingly gut-wrenching because the victims were mostly young children. Likewise, news reports about the Boston Marathon bombing emphasize the fact that, of the three people killed, one was an 8-year-old boy – as if to highlight the uniquely great loss of a child.

In the world of crime, one of the most incomprehensible acts is baby-murder. We're outraged at the widespread sex-selective infanticide of newborn girls in China. And recent headlines like "Georgia boys face murder charges after cold-blooded killing of infant being strolled by mother" and "Black teens murder white baby for the fun of it" cause us to shake our heads and wonder, How could anyone possibly sink so low as to kill a baby?

Many murders of babies – in fact almost half, according to the Justice Department's National Criminal Justice Reference Service – occur within the first 24 hours after birth, so-called "neonaticide." Of course, appalling crimes like these have always been a part of life in this fallen world – a world of good and evil, of decent and indecent people, where moral outrage is kindled within all good souls by the murder of the innocent.

However, parallel to this moral, rational world exists yet another world – an amoral, irrational one, constructed over several decades with great effort and cleverness. We're talking about the realm of ... well, what shall we call it? Every official label for it – "abortion," "choice," "women's health," "reproductive freedom" – is a euphemism designed to obscure a dark reality. That reality, stated objectively, would be: the premeditated killing of human babies residing inside their mother.

In this strange parallel world, the same killing of a baby that in the real world outrages us and results in prosecution, prison and possibly execution (or lifetime confinement in a high-security psychiatric lockup for the criminally insane) is mysteriously transformed into a "medical procedure" and "constitutional right," provided for and fiercely defended by a multi-billion-dollar industry. And funded by taxpayers. These two worlds have collided in the trial of abortionist Kermit Gosnell. And when worlds collide, spectacular and utterly unexpected things sometimes occur.

As everyone now knows, Gosnell's clinic, despite its dignified-sounding name, "Women's Medical Society," was actually a "house of horrors" more reminiscent of the Nazi doctor Josef Mengele than a legitimate medical practice. Here's how the grand jury summarized Gosnell's operation...

To read this article in its entirety, go to: <http://www.wnd.com/2013/05/the-insanity-of-the-gosnell-baby-murder-trial/>

Note from Pastor Kevin Lea: Judgment is coming to America as a result of what we have allowed to happen to the millions of unborn babies that have perished at the hands of mass murderers.

Jeremiah 19:4-8 (NKJV). "Because they have forsaken Me and made this an alien place, because they have burned incense in it to other gods whom neither they, their fathers, nor the kings of Judah have known, and have filled this place with the blood of the innocents (they have also built the high places of Baal, to burn their sons with fire for burnt offerings to Baal, which I did not command or speak, nor did it come into My mind), therefore behold, the days are coming," says the Lord, "that this place shall no more be called Tophet or the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, but the Valley of Slaughter. And I will make void the counsel of Judah and Jerusalem in this place, and I will cause them to fall by the sword before their enemies and by the hands of those who seek their lives; their corpses I will give as meat for the birds of the heaven and for the beasts of the earth. I will make this city desolate and a hissing; everyone who passes by it will be astonished and hiss because of all its plagues.