

To Ray Comfort, Bill Nye's 'Science' is 'Science Fiction'

Evangelist says 'not so fast' when TV personality attacks creationism

Note from Pastor Kevin Lea: In Bill Nye's video, he mocks people who believe in creation because he believes that dinosaurs are millions of years old. I wonder what "The Science Guy" has to say about the scientific evidence piling up that dinosaur fossils contain soft tissue. Even more surprising to those who believe in evolution, these soft tissues still contain Carbon 14 (indicating that the dinosaurs were alive less than 50,000 years ago – not the 65 million years old that Bill Nye believes). Extreme care was taken to make sure the samples were not contaminated, providing very compelling evidence that dinosaurs walked the earth in the recent past. See related article at: <http://calvarypo.org/HANDS/0949.pdf>

TV personality Bill "The Science Guy" Nye's recent tongue-lashing for those who doubt evolution's theory that sludge advanced itself to become man has drawn a response from renowned evangelist and author Ray Comfort.

"Bill Nye is living in the same dream-world as Charles Darwin, Richard Dawkins and their cut-and-paste clone believers," Comfort told WND. "These devotees believe in the fairytale of evolution and quote Einstein (who wasn't an atheist) and Mark Twain (who wasn't an atheist) as though they too denied God's existence, when they didn't."

Nye's ridicule for those to have faith in a Creator and His creation is contained in a YouTube Video titled "Creationism Is Not Appropriate For Children."

"Once in awhile I get people that claim they don't believe in evolution," he preaches. "My response is why not?" He said if one doesn't believe in evolution, "Your world view becomes untenable," and forecast that "in a couple of centuries that worldview just won't exist."

But Comfort, whose books include "Intelligent Design vs. Evolution: Letters to an Atheist," "Nothing Created Everything" and "You Can Lead an Atheist to Evidence, but You Can't Make Him Think," was more amused than offended.

"To use the word 'evolution' and the word 'science' in the same sentence is the ultimate oxymoron," said Comfort. "There's nothing scientific about a theory that is based on blind faith..."
